Funds in your HSA can be withdrawn tax-free to pay for qualified medical expenses*

*The following lists give you a general overview of qualified and non-qualified medical expenses. These lists are not all-inclusive, and are subject to change by the IRS, with the most recent change being the inclusion of over-the-counter medications and feminine hygiene products effective January 1, 2020. The IRS defines qualified medical expenses as amounts paid for the “diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease, or for the purpose of affecting any structure or function of the body.” Qualified medical expenses are eligible for reimbursement through your HSA as long as they are not reimbursed through insurance or any other source.

Important: Any HSA funds used for non-qualified expenses will be taxable. Non-qualified distributions will also be subject to a 20% IRS penalty if you are under the age of 65, unless they are made after death or disability. Consult your tax advisor if you are in doubt about a particular expense.

Whose Expenses are Eligible?

You can generally include medical expenses you pay for yourself as well as those you pay for someone who was your spouse, qualifying child or qualifying relative when the product or services were acquired. Domestic partners do not qualify for reimbursement unless they are a qualifying relative.

- A qualifying child is an individual who (a) bears a specified relationship to the employee (relationship test); (b) has the same principal abode as the employee for more than half of the year (residency test); (c) meets certain age requirements (age test); (d) has not provided more than half of his or her own support for the year (limited self-support test); and (5) has not filed a joint tax return (other than only for claim of refund) with his or her spouse for the year (marital/tax filing status test).
- A qualifying relative is an individual (a) who bears a specified relationship to the employee (relationship test); (b) whose gross income is less than the exemption amount in Code §151(d) (income test); (c) with respect to whom the employee provides over half of the individual's support (support test); and (d) who is not anyone's qualifying child.
- Individuals Who Generally Are Ineligible Under Code §152. An individual generally will not be a Code §152 dependent if he or she is a dependent of a Code §152 dependent, a married dependent filing a joint tax return, or a citizen or national of a country other than the United States.

Special Notes regarding the Timing of Distributions

- An expense is qualifying only if it is incurred after the account has been established.
- There is no time limitation as to when the distribution may occur, however the distribution should be made in the same tax-year as the payment to the provider is made. Tax form 8889 contemplates that the distribution be made in the same year that the payment to the medical provider is made.
- An account holder may withdraw funds for qualified expenses on a tax-free basis even if he or she is no longer an eligible individual at the time of distribution (i.e. account holder no longer participates in a high deductible health plan).
- A distribution for a qualified medical expense will be tax-free regardless if contributions were made to the HSA during the same year in which the expenses were incurred.
